5 advantages of owning an aluminium front door

Choosing a new door for your home is quite a problem; it is the first item your guests and neighbors will see in your home, and it is also the item you have to open and close every day.

There are many styles and materials for the door to choose from, making the situation more complicated.

Thankfully, this article highlights the five advantages of having an aluminum front door and why you should choose an aluminum front door as your next front door.

1. High thermal insulation

Aluminum doors have higher thermal insulation, which means you can save energy bills!

Yes, you heard it right. Due to the manufacturing method, the aluminum front door achieves the best insulation level throughout the year.

The door leaf is placed on the glass window, and the contour of the door leaf is reinforced with carbon glass fiber, which helps prevent thermal bridges and keep the home warm, thereby blocking airflow.

Those who like to have plenty of daylight into their home but do not want to compromise on heat insulation can choose the glass front door of aluminum profile, which provides a comfortable entrance and provides thermal insulation.

2. High security

Everyone wants to feel safe in the comfort of their own home, and the aluminum front door allows you to do this. They are tough and sturdy, and are usually manufactured with multi-point locking to help prevent forced entry.

In order to give you more peace of mind, Onew metal will provide the option of anti-intrusion reinforced concrete equipment to make you safer.

Coupled with 8mm thick laminated safety glass (if you choose aluminum windows and doors), forcible entry is almost impossible. In the event of an attempt to destroy, glass shards will also remain on the plastic film to prevent dangerous injuries

3. High sound insulation

Better than plastic and wooden doors, aluminum doors provide sound insulation when you need it most. T hick insulation and laminated glass help keep noise in the bay, which is very useful if you live on a busy main road with high traffic. Staying away from noisy external noise means you can enjoy a more peaceful family experience with your family and friends.

4. High stability

The aluminum alloy front doors from onew metal use their expertise to create unique products that have undergone durability testing in the actual environment, so you can rest assured to use durable and stable aluminum alloy front doors.

Most have a 5-year warranty, and in some cases a 10-year warranty, so you know they will be durable and of high quality.

5. Fashion

Modern style determines that aluminum doors are fashionable. Their durability means they look new for many years, and the modern design provides a stylish entrance that will impress your family and guests.

Glazed finishes and colors are available so that you can personalize your front door to your requirements. Side elements and beam lights can also make your aluminum door unique-so don't be surprised if your neighbor starts asking you where to get your new front door!
